ii. Katy McDaniel, Sr. Director, HR.

a) HR is working to develop and implement a formal procedure for those employees who are in a high-risk category as defined by CDC, who have been asked to return on campus, and who may have special requests for modification to their work environment, PPE, schedule, or other aspects of their job as it relates to their high-risk status during the Covid-19 pandemic.

1. This process is designed to provide a mechanism for HR to facilitate these requests to help the employee mitigate the risk of contracting Covid-19, while also ensuring that the essential functions of the job are completed.

2. Any employee that is requesting any specific thing related to their high-risk status would need to submit the designated request form to HR.

3. This does not apply to a request for disability accommodation. Whether the request for disability accommodation is related to Covid-19 or not, it will continue to follow the normal disability accommodation request procedures and documentation.

b) HR is working on finalizing FAQ documents to aid the employees and supervisors across the board in navigating the employment related aspects of the Covid-19 situation.

c) Currently working on ensuring that each campus can be accurately represented in terms of providing consistent information.

d) Temporary telecommuting approvals by the university remain in place until normal operations are resumed on campus. At that time, if a staff member would like to request to telecommute, the normal flexible work policy and procedures will need to be followed.

iii. Clay Simmons, Chief Compliance Officer

a) Working on putting together some training for the campus.
1. The first training will be out tomorrow and will cover things like, safe social distancing, the appropriate way to wear a mask, and when you need to wear face covering.
   i. The training will be required for all employees.
   ii. The deadline is July 31st or before we come on campus again, whichever is earlier.

b) The second training will cover some of the requirements UNT is putting in place for people to do self-monitoring when they are at home, before they come to campus. It will include information on checking oneself for any symptoms of Covid-19 infection e.g., serious cough, lack of taste or smell, a fever over 100.4 °F and some other things.

1. People who have these symptoms will be led through what they are supposed to do as their next steps which will include contacting their supervisors or contacting HR.

c) A hotline for Covid-19 questions has been set up on campus.

iv. Dr. Hermann, Exec. Dir. Student Health & Wellness Center,

   f) Need to be as proactive and quick acting as possible in other to help ensure the safety of the campus community.

h) Elevator occupancies will be limited to about four people which is the CDC current guideline.

i) Considering one directional hallway. Enforcement might be impossible.

j) Working on providing plexiglass for the high-volume customer locations.

vi. Q & A Session

a) Question (Diana Cooley): What is your recommendation about air filters in individual office spaces for staff who have concerns about building ventilation. Do you suggest we supplement with personal UV/HEPA filters? Are UNT’s Air Handling Units able to take MERV 13 filters?
   1. Dave Reynolds: Some of the buildings will be going to MERV 13 filters, but not all. All the filters will be replaced by the time everybody returns in August. It is not guaranteed that portable air filters will work.

b) Question (Devin Axtman): Do we know if things like mask wearing and elevator occupancies will be suggestions or requirements?
   1. Dave Reynolds: Masks are not a requirement; it is not mandatory to wear one, but it is highly requested. Wear a mask if you cannot maintain six feet from somebody. The same thing will also apply in the elevator. In the elevator, the recommendation will be to also wear a mask, but it is not a requirement.

c) Question (Suzan): Will there be footing to secure the plexiglass shield?
   1. Dave Reynolds: The plexiglass shields will have footings so they can either stand on the counter or stand on the ground. Requests are still being received for plexiglass shields, and the focus is on the high-volume areas first.

d) Question (Kim Wendt Collinsworth): Gateway: We are concerned about high traffic areas such as refrigerators, microwave ovens, and water coolers. Are there recommendations forthcoming for those areas?
   1. Dave Reynolds: Water fountains will be turned off as per CDC recommendation. Bottle fill stations can stay on. It is going to be on the department to keep the areas around refrigerators and microwave ovens clean. There will not be custodians to do that.

e) Question (Alex Yarbro): Are the masks for employees cloth masks that can be reused after washing?

f) Question (Katie Herbert): Could you please clarify if the two face coverings for each employee are plastic shields or masks?
1. Brandi: They are cloth masks and disposable masks. Face shields are also available. Some UNT specific branded face coverings and bandanas have been ordered, too.

g) Question (Jesse McBroom): How can the wider campus’ and each individual units’ return plans be communicated out to all parties as they become finalized?

1. Brandi: Will provide feedback after further discussion with Jim Berscheidt

IV. Constituency Concerns (5 minutes)

i. (Concern from the survey) “We all know there are many issues that the university is addressing concerning logistics for the campus for the year. However, it seems like staff are the last to know what is going on. As the admin for the Faculty Senate, I often hear of things that are announced to faculty which are also pertinent for staff but as a staff member, I have not received that information. One recent example [and if I am wrong about not getting notice, please correct me, because I have tried to keep up with the UNT emails but may have missed it]) is that the parking costs information for the upcoming year has been disseminated to faculty (possibly via their college deans), but I have not seen any announcement to staff about this. I felt this same lack of communication was occurring at the beginning of the quarantine with all of the information with instructions about working from home, etc....that the staff were basically the last to know. Maybe that is just my perception, but perhaps if you can encourage a prompt and direct line of communication about all information relevant to staff, that would be helpful.”

a) Lisa was notified about new parking costs for the upcoming fiscal year. It has been put in the newsletter

i. Charlotte: Working with EC to address that with the president.

b) Erin McKinnis wanted to know if Transportation is giving any partial refunds or credits towards next year for this year’s parking tickets.
